Feline Tooth Resorption

Corinne Durand, DVM

Tooth Resorption is one of the most common dental diseases we see in our feline patients. Though the etiology and pathogenesis are poorly understood, its diagnosis and treatment are imperative in maintaining a healthy, pain-free mouth. This lecture will cover clinical diagnosis, radiographic interpretation and treatment options for feline tooth resorption.

Corinne Durand, DVM

Dr. Corinne Durand graduated from Cornell University in 2004 with a degree in Biology – Animal Physiology. She went on to pursue her veterinary degree at St. George's University, and completed a rotating internship in small animal medicine and surgery at the Veterinary Medical Center of Long Island. With a passion for dentistry and oral surgery, she began her residency program in Veterinary Dentistry at the Veterinary Medical Center of Long Island in 2011, and completed that residency in 2015. She has also written articles for the Publication in the Journal of Veterinary Dentistry. Dr. Durand joined Metropolitan Veterinary Associates in August 2015.
